WHEAT NEEDS RAIN.

Frank Curt Says the Chances Are Favorable for Some Grain to Rot if Rain Does Not Come Soon.

"Unless we get rain soon, there is grave danger of some of the wheat already sown on the reservation, rotting before it sprouts," says Frank Curt, manager of the Kerr-Gifford warehouse, after a drive over the reservation yesterday evening.

"In most instances the early-sown grain is growing nicely, but the ground is dry and it is barely possible that many of the fields will have but a poor stand of wheat, if rain does not visit them very soon.

"The wheat already up is doing nicely and is growing at a rapid rate, but a general rain is badly needed."

ANTI-TOXIC SERUM

GOVERNMENT PHYSICIAN IMMUNIZES 22 INDIANS.

Dr. Henderson Vigorously Defends the Anti-Toxin System of Lessening the Liability to Diphtheria—Ten Cases of Diphtheria on the Reservation, All Under Quarantine and the Government Physician Is Confident All Will Recover.

There have been no deaths on the Umatilla reservation by reason of the prevalence of diphtheria, although 10 cases are under quarantine. Eight of the cases are at the Catholic school, and two are in the home of Narcisse Bushman.

Yesterday Dr. T. M. Henderson, the government physician, immunized 22 girls at the Catholic school, with anti-toxic serum. The government sent 50,000 units of anti-toxin to be used, but Dr. Henderson was obliged to secure 20,000 units more from La Grande.

"The idea is generally prevalent," said Dr. Henderson, "that the injection of anti-toxic serum into the human is dangerous. This is a mistake. The anti-toxin is drawn from the blood of horses who are in a healthy condition, and there is no danger whatever attached to placing the serum in a child's system. The strength of the anti-toxin is determined by the amount of the toxin required to kill a guinea pig. It is then graduated and placed in amounts of 1000 units each into hermetically sealed glass syringes. One thousand units is considered sufficient to immunize a person, although as high as 50,000 units have been injected into a single patient. I have used up 18,000 units on one little girl at the school.

"I think the cases at the reservation are well under control, and I have strong hopes of the recovery of all of the sick. Some of them, however, have been very ill."

BADLY SCARED DARKEY.

Wrong Man Picked Up by the Police This Morning.

An unknown negro, who was suspected by a freight crew of being Ira D. Whorton, the man wanted for slaying Edward Le Roy, was given a fright this morning that caused his shabby countenance to assume a hue a shade nearer the complexion of a Caucasian. The colored man stole aboard a west-bound freight train at Kameia early this morning, and was observed by one of the trainmen. Word was telegraphed ahead to the local peace officers and when the train pulled into the yards shortly before 5 o'clock, Marshal M. J. Carney, Deputy Sheriff Joe Blakley, Policeman O. W. Coffman and E. E. Turner were waiting.

The deputy sheriff and Coffman were the first to come upon the negro, who was crouching beside a car.

"Throw up your hands," commanded the officers drawing their guns. The startled man saw the weapons, but he evidently did not understand the command, for he started toward Blakley with his hands hanging at his side and his eyes starting from their sockets. "Up with your hands, or I'll shoot," again commanded the deputy and his trigger finger began to tighten.

"Wha-a-a-t's dat?" broke from the trembling lips of the negro, but he got his answer from the determined look and the two revolvers and up went his arms. They were long ones, too, and he added a few inches more by standing on his tip toes.

Then Marshal Carney arrived and declared the prisoner was not the man wanted. "I'm powerful glad," exclaimed the fellow when he regained his speech. "Say, boss, what did dat othan nigger do? It mus' a been somethin' mighty bad."

The colored man was allowed to go, but was told to make himself scarce in Pendleton.

SHOT AT WRONG MAN.

Grimy White Man Overhauled, Supposed to Be Whorton.

(Special to the East Oregonian.) La Grande, Nov. 16.—A negro answering the description of Ira D. Whorton, wanted in Pendleton for assault with intent to commit murder, made his escape from an officer between Telocaset and North Powder early this morning, and is believed to be headed for Baker City. The negro was discovered in a box car when the train reached Telocaset. A constable secured the door of the car and boarded the train, intending to arrest the man when he reached North Powder. When the latter station was reached the colored man was found to have made his escape by chopping a hole in the side of the car.

In this city last night Nightwatchman Wade found a man whom he took for Whorton, on top of a passenger coach. He arrested the fellow, but on the way to jail the man broke and ran. The officer recaptured him after a long chase in which he fired five shots. At the city jail the prisoner proved to be a white man, begrimed with coal soot. He was turned loose.

Pilot Rock Society Item.

S. L. Morse, ex-mayor of Pilot Rock, and ex-deputy United States Marshal—a man who never knew what it was to be sick a day in his life—to use a vernacular, is "up against it." He is a very sick man, but he is not confined to his bed. His ailment is a boil on the back of his neck. The boil is about the size of a hen's egg, but Mr. Morse thinks it is larger than Mt. Hood.—Pilot Rock Record.
